Creative Brief

Amy Hwang
10/21/2026

Project Title: Medieval Weapons Website

1. Project Overview
    a. I want my website to be informational, but more playful and easy to understand for general audiences rather than a very detailed or complex presentation of research.

2. Resources
    a. https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/List_of_medieval_weapons Sub articles to weapons are available here
        i. Arming swords / daggers / longswords
        ii. Battle axe / club / mace
        iii. Spear / glaive / lance
        iv. English longbow / crossbow (or arbalest) / arquebus?
3. Audience
    a. This is an informational site, but I intend it to be more entertaining or fun for general audiences, rather than an extremely detailed / researched site for people who are already knowledgeable on the subject. Most likely targeted for children ~ young adults who are just curious about various subjects or trivia.
4. Message
    a. I'd like to create interest about the variety of weapons used in the Middle Ages, and what they show about the time period, historical context, or culture.
5. Tone
    a. The style of the website should match a sort of historic / medieval style of the subject, but I would like it to feel more playful and interactive, possibly even a bit silly.
6. Visual Style
    a. Again, I'd like it to draw inspiration from medieval style, like old illustrations or art. Probably using vintage colors or textures, like old scroll paper, illuminated borders. But I would like it to feel simple / not so busy that it's difficult to navigate, clean, interactive / responsive. (The textures / elements should feel a little more adapted to modern ui rather than overpowering the actual content)

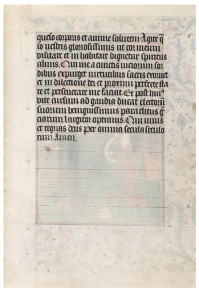

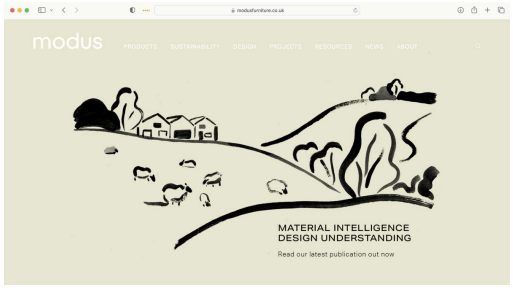

(toned down / simplified a lot but these sort of old textures, illuminated manuscript, medieval illustrations)

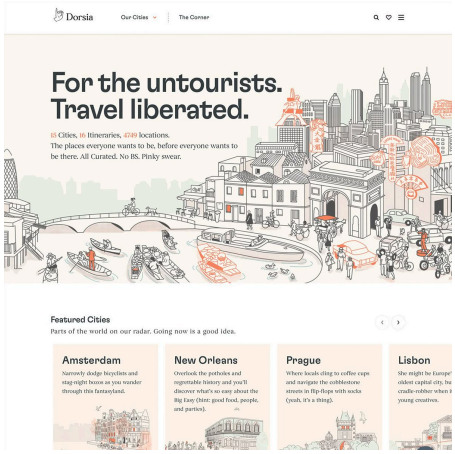

this sort of illustrated, but still very cleanly organized website design is very nice
More slightly minimalist / simplified